Great game after 4 hours of play im not tired of playing !!! Maybe add a " competitive elimination " mode like CSGO similar and also be able to make , create clans and do clan wars im sure it would bring alot of players !!!!

fun 10 on 10 great little game for everyone. Nice littel platformer. I got a 33% discount for completing a badge. Glad i did, i might have missed a nice game.

You are indirectly controlling the guy in-game. To get him somewhere you need to change gravity. I played the first 8 levels and took me around 50 minutes including the collection of stars that are in each level. The music does fit well for that game and i liked to hear the different songs.

Only negative point is that i had to use the soundcontrol of my OS to make the music less loud.

I would not recommend this game to someone how as not the time or calmness to die often.. I used this as a memory aid to help me keep my katakana & hiragana in mind while i am taking Japanese 122. If thats all you want, to be able to recognize those characters it's useful. But it does not explain or teach these well. It's more of a memory aid to remember what your learning, kinda becomes addictive to see how fast you can do it.I played this game daily most of the semester. Cheap price for the help. description maybe from non native english speaker. it's flash cards with some music/drawn scenes.I keep it on my laptop and play offline. probably have 40 hours on it ,not the 4 shown.. Still better than any need for speed. Exceeded my expectations and then some! Amazing modernized spin on a classic game. Amazing gameplay, tons of polish. Would recommend to anyone, even if they weren't a fan of Link To The Past.

Why is it ok that people are upvoting terrible game with no redeeming quality on steam just because they think it is funny? Don't they realise that reviews were made for potential new players that are thinking about picking up the game? Sorry, but I refuse to be a part of the herd since SAMOLIOTIK is a terrible product and there are thousand of similar titles on as flash games for free.

SAMOLIOTIK is a lot of things, but sadly it is not a good game. When you start the game you are thrown into action without any explanation or guidance but everything is easy to pick up.

Your only goal is to hold down left mouse button while moving your plane to shoot down enemies. After certain point amount you are going to face level boss – basically a stationary huge square with no abilities that is blocking half of the screen – and after you kill it you move into next level that is exactly the same thing with different background and look on enemies. There are five levels in total and in each one of them you can pick a power up that lets you shoot three bullets at once, one that speeds you up for and blurry your vision and one that makes two salvo of bullets for you.

When it comes other things that should be mentioned I have to say that soundtrack is more or less decent for the first time but it repeats itself extremely quickly. Game has zero to non replay value since there is never anything new and you get will get bored with it rather quickly. Only reason I see to pick this game is to get another “Perfect game” score with 100% achievements, since that can be done in less than 10 minutes.

Overall I have to say that SAMOLIOTIK is played and feels like a student’s project and should had been published as a free flash game.

. This title is only chapter 1 of a 3 part story. The story is mildly interesting, however unless you know saints and bishops by sight you cannot pass the game without using hints constantly or just randomly clicking dudes in robes. The art work is decent but some of the items do not look like the description...so you must use the hint button again and again. A construction helmet looked like a school notebook with a metal circle taped to it. Overall I just kept clicking until it ended but I wasn't really having fun.. Great game! Worth the price!. it's a shame this doesn't have any way of giving yourself money when the game bugs out and takes away your funds :<. This was by far the best narrative experience I have had in VR yet. Clearly a lot of work went in to this. The visuals are great and the story itself is great. Some scenes evoke so much more awe in you than any flat screen can muster. I found myself continuously thinking "wow this is amazing" as I watched. I hope this style of story telling takes off, because I want to see a lot more of this.

My only small gripes are that some scenes can unnecesarily jump around a bit too much like it was still being viewed on a screen when they dont need to, and the last scene every time it changed settings back and forth there was a loading screen for a split second which kind of broke up the immersion. This was on I7-6700k, 1080ti and SSD.

Otherwise amazing experience. I hope you make more like this, I will buy day one.

Edit: Watched again with Pimax 5K+... amazing. Also all the loading issues have been resolved. Cant recommend this enough.
